Cloudflare is monitoring and so is Gauge. The technique is very sophisticated but the person(s) behind it are not. The analogy given to me was a teenager has stolen a Lamborghini.

Sent to Tim Fruge on Dec 22, 2019 9:42:55 AM

I've been promoting the shortwave radio show of Infowars wherever I can. Anyone who'd like to listen to Infowars the old school way can go to Amazon and buy an Eton Elite Traveler or Tecsun PL 310et AM/FM/Shortwave radio (these are very nice but inexpensive receivers) and tune to shortwave frequency 4840 at 10pm Central time in the USA. The show is broadcast from Tennessee but can easily be heard for many hundreds of miles away.

The Eton Elite Traveler uses 4 AA batteries and it's best to buy a charger with NIMH batteries and get regular AAs for backup. The Tecsun uses 3 AA batteries so if you buy a charger it needs to be one that can charge single batteries so you can charge three at a time. Many chargers can only charge 2 or 4 batteries at a time and that won't work. The Tecsun can charge batteries inside it but you'll have to buy a separate AC adapter and the charge feature has been known to fail.

Note to AM radio lovers...the Eton is a top notch AM receiver yet fits in a large shirt pocket.

If you have 100 bucks to spend the Eton Elite Executive radio is on sale on Amazon. It does it all. It has AIRCRAFT band too and can tune HAM radio operators and many other interesting signals on shortwave using SSB (single side band). Other radios like this cost much much more. This is a high tech receiver and a great value!

These radios have a learning curve so study the user manual to learn the many features to get the best performance and avoid frustration. Learn as much as you can about the shortwave/AM listening hobby as well including the antennas used and propagation during different seasons and times of day and how to deal with static caused by various electronics in the home. Sometimes incurable electronic interference makes it impossible to listen inside the home but these radios are at least portable and can always be used on camping trips or during power outages. If you don't like the radio you buy or simply can't use it at your location because of static, send it back to Amazon for a refund.

Get one of these radios, take a break, and spend a few hours one night scanning the Conservative talk radio stations on AM radio. They can easily be heard at night as far away as 700-1000 miles if conditions are right and there isn't too much static in your home from electronics. Shortwave radio can be heard even farther away, even during the day. Infowars can also be heard on shortwave frequency 12.160 during the day but I forget what time. Someday soon a decent portable radio might come in handy to get important information if liberals get their way and collapse the economy so that's my main reason for posting this. Radio used to be our internet...and it's fun to scan those mysterious distant signals late at night

We ended up about $750k total yesterday. Looks like food sales was about $625k-$650k. Matt just informed me that we say 6-8 weeks now for delivery. He doesn't anticipate it going over 8 weeks no matter what. We are selling more food daily than he can physically produce and he is getting other factories to help package now. Absolutely bonkers...

The screenshot shows a text conversation on a mobile phone. At the top, the contact name is 'Mari Makiyoy' with a status 'Online'. The messages are as follows:

- Mari Makiyoy: "I'll give you an estimate tonight. There's a chance, but the US economy is so weak, you do not know or you can't ask about the subprime. You let me handle that at the right time."
- Mari Makiyoy: "Equipment will be coming soon. I'll call the US attorney tomorrow. I will by make loans, but the best way is to make power is to own the car. I hope you're up to a fight. I do not need to bow I come to court."
- Mari Makiyoy: "That's what I want. When can I send to the police."
- Mari Makiyoy: "If call you in a few..."
